The research presented in this book was conducted during my doctoral studies at the University of Bergamo. The present monograph is a revised version of my dissertation submitted and defended in 2020.

First and foremost, I would like to thank my PhD supervisor, Piera Molinelli. She has always asked interesting questions and made constructive suggestions. I thank Piera for her scientific and human support.

A special thought goes to Caterina Mauri, who supervised my dissertation and encouraged me to discover the spoken mode and its emerging grammar. I will always be indebted to Caterina for her support and inspiration, linguistically and otherwise. I particularly thank her because she gave me the opportunity to explore the KIParla Corpus during its implementation.

A special thanks goes to my advisor Ignazio Efisio Putzu, who once told me that un libro non può andar spreco and encouraged me during my PostDoc Fellowship to work hard on this book. Sincere thanks also go to Immacolata Pinto for her academic and personal support and for her enthusiastic interest in my research.

I would like to thank Rita Franceschini, Michele Prandi, Andrea Sansò, Federica Venier, Emilia Calaresu and Miriam Voghera. All of them gave me different perspectives, raised questions and made suggestions about the topic of comment clauses. Together they provided me with complementary input ranging from the philosophy of language, to diachrony, grammaticalisation, discourse studies and the grammar in spoken discourse. I also thank Stefan Schneider, who talked to me about parentheticals walking along the streets of Valencia some years ago. Further thanks to Kate Beeching for crucial discussions on the interpretation of some challenging comment clauses.

This book owes much to two research stays in Louvain-la-Neuve under the tutorship of Liesbeth Degand, who inspired many of the insights of this work. Sincere gratitude goes to Liesbeth for all the mornings and afternoons she spent in her office listening to my countless and complex questions about Italian comment clauses. In Louvain-la-Neuve I had the opportunity to meet Anne-Catherine Simon, who very kindly taught me how to describe the ‘parenthesis’ of Italian comment clauses, by explaining how to work with a Prosogram. Then, a special thanks goes to Ludivine Crible. Along with making me feel at home during my Belgian months, she helped me enormously with the EXMARaLDA software.

I thank Chiara Ghezzi and Chiara Fedriani for insightful discussions and for their firm and sincere support.

I am also particularly indebted to the network in Bologna: I thank Francesca Masini and Alessandra Barotto. And many thanks to Egle Mocciaro, Ilaria Fiorentini and Valentina Benigni, who supported me over these last years from different corners of Italy and of Europe.

Much gratitude goes to Eugenio Gorla and Silvia Ballarè for helping me with the KIParla Corpus data, audios, transcriptions and so forth.

Sincere thanks to Luisa Brucale, who introduced me to linguistics. I thank Luisa for her sincere and firm support.

I also want to thank the series editors Chiara Gianollo and Daniel Van Olmen, content editor Barbara Karlson and Elisabeth Stanciu at De Gruyter for truly helping me turn my dissertation into a proper book.

I sincerely thank Catherine Paige for her active support regarding the proof-reading of the book.

Many thanks also to all my friends and the wonderful people I met in Louvain-la-Neuve and in Brussels. Special gratitude goes to my wonderful friends Nina, Marta, Roberta and Laura, who support me every day from different parts of Italy.

I remain immensely thankful to my mother for her immeasurable strength, love, patience and dedication. I thank my big family: Enza, Ele, Leo, Stefano, Nino, Salvo, Dami F., Dami P., Francesca, Giuseppe, Domenico, Martina and zia S. A. Lucia. And I remember with endless thankfulness my father who now looks and protects me from Heaven with his ongoing love.

Last but not least, immeasurable gratitude to my loving partner, who has always believed in me, who loves me, who appreciates the way I love my research, who encourages me, my most faithful and steady supporter, Marco.
